

When we wake up
We know no more
Of what will be for our day
Than what will follow our death
We continually recreate
Our customary existence
By force of habit and conditioning

© 2002, Aaron Elliott